

CLIMATE2020 – the worldwide online climate conference

Integrating Mitigation & Adaptation Initiatives for a Better Management of Climate Change and Its Impacts

23-30 March 2020 at www.dl4sd.org

Organised by the Research and Transfer Centre Sustainability and Climate Impact Management (FTZ-NK) of the Hamburg University of Applied Sciences, the 7th online climate conference communicates current research results on climate change and its consequences. In particular, young scientists from all over the world are offered an opportunity to present their own research on a worldwide stage. The conference will also provide information on numerous concrete projects, initiatives and strategies that are currently being implemented on five continents, presenting the latest examples of global activities to protect the climate.

All this is just a mouse click away - participants can easily log in via the Internet, whether in the office, at school, at university, from home or on the move. This closes a knowledge gap in the fields of climate protection (mitigation) and adaptation, which can be discussed integratively and interactively.

- The worldwide virtual conference will take place from 23.3.2020 to 30.3.2020 exclusively on the Internet – climate-neutral as all CO₂ emissions are offset!
- The online conference offers unrestricted, free access to high-quality scientific articles, climate projects and online courses 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.
- CLIMATE 2020 offers a unique opportunity for worldwide dialogue and exchange of ideas with scientists, experts from politics, business and society and the participating conference community.
- Through its comprehensive programme, the virtual event contributes to meeting the global sustainability goal 13 "Climate Action" (sustainable development goal, SDG 13).
