◆ Teaching Method

All classes will take the Comprehensive Chinese course combined teaching with practice and gives first priority to listening and speaking as the main course type, and should adhere to Chinese as the main teaching language while English as a supplement, and then get rid of dependence on English as soon as possible.

All classes need to strengthen the application-oriented teaching concept, and apply sentence - pattern awareness to the three major sections of classroom teaching:

First, the Vocabulary section, equipped with accurate example sentences, guide students to understand the meaning of words in sentences, and improve students' integration ability.

Second, the Grammar section, we should abandon the idea of "teaching", provide the real-life contexts, guide students to understand the meaning of the grammatical points in the context, and improve students' ability to form words and sentences.

Third, the Practice section, the training of listening and speaking abilities is highlighted, which guides students to think independently in sentence patterns and contexts, and improves students' ability to draw inferences about other cases from one instance.

At the same time, Review classes and HSK Tutoring classes matching the learning content will be set as auxiliary courses, and various types of HSK question formats are consciously introduced to lay a good foundation for students to participate in formal examinations.
